Calendion of Antioch

(fl. 479 - 485)

BRIEFING

Calendion of Antioch (also, Calandion or Callandion) was the Patriarch of Antioch between 479 and 485.

BIOGRAPHY

Calendion supported the results of the Council of Chalcedon but refused to accept the Henotikon of 482, through which the Roman Emperor, Zeno, attempted to reconcile the pro- and anti-Chalcedonian sides. This was because Calendion regarded it as a covert attempt to overturn the council's holdings.

Calendion supported the rebellion of Illus in 484, and as a result was deposed and banished by Zeno shortly thereafter, being replaced as Patriarch by Peter II of Antioch.